Uprawnienia zdającego do:

- nieprzenoszenia odpowiedzi na kartę odpowiedzi
- dostosowania zasad oceniania.

Przed rozpoczęciem pracy z arkuszem egzaminacyjnym

1. Sprawdź, czy nauczyciel przekazał Ci właściwy arkusz egzaminacyjny, tj. arkusz we właściwej formule, z właściwego przedmiotu na właściwym poziomie.
2. Jeżeli przekazano Ci niewłaściwy arkusz – natychmiast zgłoś to nauczycielowi. Nie rozrywaj banderol.
3. Jeżeli przekazano Ci właściwy arkusz – rozerwij banderole po otrzymaniu takiego polecenia od nauczyciela. Zapoznaj się z instrukcją na stronie 2.

Instrukcja dla zdającego

1. Sprawdź, czy arkusz egzaminacyjny zawiera 16 stron (zadania 1–7). Ewentualny brak zgłoś przewodniczącemu zespołu nadzorującego egzamin.
2. Na pierwszej stronie oraz na karcie odpowiedzi wpisz swój numer PESEL i przyklej naklejkę z kodem.
3. Pisz czytelnie. Używaj długopisu/pióra tylko z czarnym tuszem/atramentem.
4. Nie używaj korektora, a błędne zapisy wyraźnie przekreśl.
5. Pamiętaj, że zapisy w brudnopisie nie będą oceniane.
6. Aby zaznaczyć odpowiedzi w części karty przeznaczonej dla zdającego, zamaluj  pola do tego przeznaczone. Błędne zaznaczenie otocz kółkiem  i zaznacz właściwe pole.
7. Tylko odpowiedzi zaznaczone na karcie będą oceniane.
8. Nie wpisuj żadnych znaków w części przeznaczonej dla egzaminatora.

Zadanie 1. (0–4)

Przeczytaj tekst, który został podzielony na trzy części (A–C), oraz pytania go dotyczące (1.1.–1.4.). Do każdego pytania dopasuj właściwą część tekstu. Wpisz rozwiązania do tabeli.

Uwaga: w jednej części tekstu znajdują się odpowiedzi na dwa pytania.

In which paragraph does the author mention

1.1.	human error as a possible reason for a break in Big Ben's functioning?
1.2.	a feature of the clock tower that most people fail to notice?
1.3.	a slight delay in hearing the bell when one is at the foot of the tower?
1.4.	a factor which led to a change in the clock's appearance?

BIG BEN

- A. Visitors to London often refer to the famous clock tower and the clock itself as Big Ben. But that's not accurate. Big Ben is only the name of the bell inside the tower. The tower is called the Elizabeth Tower. Not many people know that it leans¹. This is only seen by those few passers-by who take the time to study its exterior very closely, because the tower leans only slightly – about 0.04 degrees.
- B. Big Ben first chimed² in July 1859, but two months later a crack³ appeared in the bell. This was most likely caused by a worker carrying out routine maintenance⁴. As a result, the bell fell silent for four years. When the bell chimes, it not only informs Londoners and tourists about the time, but also illustrates an interesting phenomenon. As sound travels slower than radio waves, people listening to a live radio broadcast will hear the bell's chimes one-sixth of a second earlier than people walking past the clock tower.
- C. The clock's maintenance book reveals that the clock's hands were blue when it was built in 1859, but London's smog gradually turned them black. In the 1980s, a new coat of paint was applied. This time the colour black was chosen to avoid discolouration. The clock's hands are illuminated by 28 energy-efficient bulbs, each of which has a lifetime of 60,000 hours. However, from 1939 to 1945, the authorities decided to make an exception – the clock's hands remained unlit because of wartime blackout rules.

² Chime – dzwonić, bić.

³ Crack – pęknięcie.

⁴ Maintenance – konserwacja.

MEETING YOUR DOUBLE AT 30,000 FEET

Having seatmates can be the most irritating part of air travel. Spending a few hours next to a chatty stranger or a noisy eater can really be a passenger's worst nightmare. But what would you do if you sat down next to... a person who looks like you?

That's just what happened to Neil Thomas Douglas, a Scottish photographer travelling to Ireland. 2.1. _____ What he couldn't know was that Robert Stirling, a 35-year-old civil servant from Redbridge, who was sitting there, wasn't actually supposed to be in that seat.

2.2. _____ As Mr Douglas asked the other man if he would let him take the window seat, things took a funny turn. The moment Mr Stirling raised his head, Mr Douglas noticed that the man bore a striking resemblance¹ to him. Lee Beattie, who accompanied Mr Douglas on the trip, said they all had a laugh about it and everyone around them was amused, too.

2.3. _____ In it, you could see two strangers looking so strikingly similar that you might want to start playing "spot the difference". Social media users expressed surprise and even disbelief that the two men weren't related.

However, the coincidences² didn't stop with that chance meeting on the airplane. When Mr Douglas checked into his hotel in Galway, he saw Mr Stirling in the lobby. It turned out the two of them had booked at the same place. Lee Beattie says both men shared another joke about it and went their own ways. Some might say that two such meetings in one day were enough, but there was still more to come. Later that night, Mr Douglas decided to go to a local pub, The Quays. And just imagine, Mr Stirling was there, too. 2.4. _____ That one, however, clearly showed that, despite their facial similarities, Mr Douglas is a little older than Mr Stirling.

² Coincidence – something that happens by chance, is not planned in any way.

- A. They all seemed to be eager to grab the opportunity to be photographed together with the two men.
- B. They chatted over a drink and, obviously, took another selfie to commemorate the occasion.
- C. A couple of minutes earlier, he had actually swapped places with a girl so that she wouldn't have to be separated from her boyfriend.
- D. When Mr Douglas boarded his flight, he noticed that the place next to him was already occupied.
- E. Encouraged by the passengers' reactions, the lookalikes decided to capture the moment, so they took a selfie and later posted it online.

LADY LIBERTY POSTAGE STAMPS

Everyone makes mistakes, even the United States Postal Service (USPS). One particular mistake, however, was a bit more costly than others. It turned out that the “Statue of Liberty Forever” stamp released by the USPS in 2010 didn’t actually have a picture of New York’s Statue of Liberty on it. Instead the photo was of a replica¹ of the Statue of Liberty which stands in front of the New York-New York Hotel in Las Vegas. This mistake cost the organization $3.5 million, in compensation for illegally using the image of the replica.

The Statue of Liberty is a beloved American symbol. In 1996, the New York-New York Hotel ordered a replica of the iconic statue. The famous sculptor Robert Davidson gave the statue a fresh look, with a face that had a softer appearance, apparently inspired by a photograph of his mother-in-law. The statue is about two-fifths the height of the original, has slightly different proportions, and weighs far less. It is also made of less durable² materials.

The USPS eventually noticed the problem three months after the stamp was released. Over 3 billion copies had been printed. Still, the organization wasn’t too bothered by the mistake, arguing that the replica and the original could hardly be distinguished from one another.

“We really like the image and are thrilled that people have noticed. If you ask people in Las Vegas, they generally say, ‘Hey, that’s great. That’s wonderful.’ It has certainly injected some excitement into our stamp program,” a USPS spokesman told reporters.

However, the courts have recently ruled in favour of a lawsuit filed by the replica’s sculptor, which requires the USPS to pay him compensation for copyright violation.

² Durable – able to last and be used for a long time.

3.1. Which is TRUE about the stamps released in 2010?

- A. They showed a Statue of Liberty which was different from the original.
- B. They were purchased for $3.5 million.
- C. They included the New York-New York Hotel in the background.

3.2. After the USPS discovered what had happened, it

- A. issued an apology for the confusion caused.
- B. tried to pretend there was no problem.
- C. refused to comment.

A CHANCE MEETING

The doors of the subway train were just closing when Annixter suddenly noticed a familiar-looking little man walking on the platform with a briefcase in one hand and a folded evening paper under his other arm. He turned toward the exit as Annixter squeezed¹ between the closing doors of the train and stepped on the platform. Annixter elbowed his way through the crowd and put a hand on the little man's shoulder.

"Just a minute," Annixter said. "I've got to talk to you. It won't take long. Let's go somewhere."

The little man said, "I can't imagine what you want to talk to me about."

The crowd on the platform had thinned, but there were still people going up and down. The little man looked at Annixter with politely inquiring expression.

Annixter said, "Of course you can't, it's so terribly silly! But it's about that play."

"What play?" Annixter felt a faint anxiety. "Haha. You had me going there, for a minute. I haven't any idea what you're talking about. I've never seen you before in my life. I'm sorry. Goodnight," the little man said.

He turned and rushed towards the stairs. Annixter couldn't believe his ears. He stared blankly² after the little man for an instant, then a rush of anger and suspicion swept away his confusion. He raced up the stairs and caught the little man by the arm.

"Do you mind taking your hand off me?" the little man said.

Annixter controlled himself. "I'm sorry," he said. "Let me get this right, though. You say you've never seen me before. Then you weren't at the Grand Hotel Café on the 27th? You didn't have coffee with me and listen to an idea for a play that I had just come up with? You didn't see me almost getting hit by a taxi? You didn't say to the taxi driver, 'He's not my friend. He's someone I've just met?'"

"I don't know what you're talking about," the little man said sharply.

"I want you to tell that story back to me as I told it to you. I've forgotten it and I know it was a great idea. Please!"

"You ask," the little man said, "an impossibility, since I've never heard it."

With a sudden movement, he jerked³ his arm free, and raced up the stairs. People were hurrying down. He zigzagged through them with extraordinary speed. By the time Annixter reached the street, there was no sign of the little man.

² Blankly – obojętnie.

³ Jerk – szarpać.

3.3. Where was Annixter standing when he saw the little man?

- A. on a subway train
- B. on a subway platform
- C. on the stairs at a subway station

3.4. Annixter wanted the little man to

- A. apologize for what had happened the night before.
- B. remind him of an idea for a play.
- C. invite him for a coffee at the Grand Hotel Café.

3.5. From the final paragraph of the text we learn that

- A. the little man needed someone's help to break free.
- B. the little man eventually agreed to help Annixter.
- C. Annixter did not manage to catch up with the little man.
