Перед початком роботи зі збіркою екзаменаційних завдань

1. Перевір, чи ти отримав/отримала від учителя правильну збірку екзаменаційних завдань, тобто збірку згідно з відповідною формулою, з відповідного предмета на відповідному рівні.
2. Якщо ти отримав/отримала неправильну збірку, то негайно повідом учителя. Не розпакуй її.
3. Якщо ти отримав/отримала правильну збірку, то розпакуй її, коли вчитель дасть таку вказівку. Ознайомся з інструкцією на сторінці 2.

Інструкція для екзаменованого

1. Перевір, чи збірка екзаменаційних завдань складається з 17 сторінок (завдання 1.–10.). Якщо сторінок не вистачає, повідом про це головному спостерігачеві.
2. На першій сторінці та на бланку відповідей напиши свій номер PESEL і приклей наліпку з кодом.
3. Записи до завдань 1.–3. будуть звучати з компакт-диска.
4. Пиши розбірливо. Користуйся кульковою/чорнильною ручкою з чорним стрижнем/чорнилом.
5. Не використовуй коректор, чітко закреслюй помилки.
6. Пам'ятай, що записи в чернетці не будуть оцінюватися.
7. Щоб позначити відповіді в частині бланка, відведеній для екзаменованого, замалюй відведені для цього поля. Неправильне позначення обведи колом і познач правильну відповідь.
8. Оцінюватися будуть тільки відповіді, позначені на бланку.
9. Не вписуй жодних знаків у частині, відведеній для екзаменатора.

VERA WANG: A SUCCESSFUL AMERICAN FASHION DESIGNER

4.1.

As a young girl, Vera Wang was passionate about figure skating. She competed professionally throughout her teens. Her ambition was to become a member of the USA national figure skating team and take part in the Olympics. Unfortunately, when she was 16, she failed to qualify for the Olympics. After this disappointment, Vera decided to stop skating.

4.2.

She began studying art history at Sara Lawrence College and spent her summers working at the Yves Saint Laurent store in her home city. One day at the store, she met a man who worked for Vogue – a famous fashion magazine. To her surprise, he invited her to work for the magazine as an assistant to the fashion director. Within a year, Wang was promoted and became one of the magazine's youngest ever senior fashion editors.

4.3.

In 1987, Vera Wang left Vogue to take a job as a design director at Ralph Lauren. A short time later, she began planning her wedding. Because she was unable to find a wedding dress that satisfied her, she designed one herself. This made her realize that she had the talent and passion necessary to become a professional dress designer. In 1990, Wang quit her job at Ralph Lauren and opened her own clothing boutique with the plan to design and sell her own collections.

4.4.

At first, her shop offered clothes only from well-known designers. Then, she gradually started adding her own designs. She first received international attention during the 1994 Winter Olympics. She had designed a costume that figure skater Nancy Kerrigan wore while skating. Soon, celebrities from many countries were wearing her dresses at various events, and her designs were a popular topic of discussion on top TV shows.

New Message

To: Sue Brown Cc Bcc

Subject: Good news 😊

Hi Sue,
Just a quick note to tell you that I started playing basketball for my school team. Yesterday we had an important match. We played quite well, but we lost by four points. At the end I felt like crying. The winning team got some awesome T-shirts as a prize, but we didn't get anything. I was so disappointed. But then, when I was leaving the court, a well-known basketball coach, who was at the match, came up to me and said "You were the best player on the court. I hope you'll join my club one day." It was such a surprise! And I felt really happy.
That's all for now,
Dorothy

“Can I help you, Miss?” – I heard a strong male voice behind me.

“I’m going up to deck A. Isn’t this the right way?” I replied. And then I added: “I’ve just received an invitation from Oona Sheehan to visit her in her first-class cabin.” I quickly showed him the message I had got from Oona. “Very good, Miss. Allow me to go with you,” the man said. He led me up to Oona’s cabin, knocked on the door and we entered. “If you please, madam, there’s a young lady to see you – her name is Molly Murphy.”

“How good of you to come, Molly,” Oona said.

“Miss Sheehan, why exactly did you invite me?” I asked a moment after the steward had left the cabin. “You hardly know me!”

Oona said: “Molly, I know that you are a lady detective, so you must be the kind of woman who likes a challenge and perhaps you would like to earn some extra money on this trip. I have a small proposition for you. It’s not always easy being me. I can never be alone, never have a chance to be myself. Even now, on this ship, in the middle of the ocean. People follow me like puppy dogs. It can become very tiring. I’m taking this trip home because my doctor has ordered me to slow down and rest. I would like some peace and quiet during the voyage.”

“You said you had a proposition for me,” I said.

“Yes. I want to change places with you on this voyage,” Oona said to my surprise.

“You want what?” I asked.

“Exactly what I said. For this voyage I want to become Molly Murphy, and I want you to stay in this cabin and become Oona Sheehan.”

“But that’s absurd,” I said.

“I’ve thought it all out. I’ll announce that I am feeling ill and I am staying in my cabin. If anyone knocks on the door and tries to talk to you, tell them that you have a terrible sore throat,” Oona said.

“Let me get this right. You’ll take my second-class cabin, down on E deck?” I asked.

“Yes. Say you’ll agree, and I’ll pay you straight away,” Oona said.

I thought for a moment. “I’ll do it,” I said.

She handed me a hundred dollars. Then she said: “Let’s exchange clothing and I’ll make my way down to E deck. And of course, feel free to use anything you like.” When we had switched clothes, she left. I stood in my new cabin, still feeling shocked. This was certainly the strangest thing which had ever happened to me. I was about to start a great adventure in my new role as Oona Sheehan. Then I heard someone knocking on my door.

“Come in,” I called, trying to sound like a famous actress with a sore throat. A pretty young woman entered the room and smiled politely.

“Good morning, Miss Murphy, I’m Rose, and Miss Sheehan has just asked me to look after you and give you whatever you need.”

I realized that it was going to be an unusual voyage.
